WHERE TECHNOLOGY MEETS YOUR LIFESTYLE

*KOZI Media Design: Engineering Experiences,
One Home and Business at a Time*

Meet Tim Koziarski and Chris Koziarski

THERE IS A MOMENT — the lights dim, the screen comes to life, the sound fills the room just right — when technology stops being something you use and becomes something you simply feel. That is the moment KOZI Media Design works toward on every single project.

Based in the Pittsburgh region, KOZI Media Design has spent more than three decades earning the trust of homeowners, builders, architects, interior designers, and business owners who expect more than a system that merely works. They want an experience — one that is thoughtfully designed, beautifully integrated, and engineered to last. Brothers Tim and Chris Koziarski built this company on exactly that promise, and today their team continues to deliver it with a level of care and craftsmanship that sets them apart.

What makes KOZI different starts long before a single wire is run or a screen is mounted. It starts with a conversation. The KOZI team takes the time to genuinely understand each client — their lifestyle, their daily routines, their aesthetic preferences, and the goals they have for their space. No assumption is made. No detail is too small. Whether a client envisions a dedicated home theater with reference-grade audio, a whole-home automation system that responds to voice commands, or a seamlessly connected business environment, KOZI listens first and engineers second.

That process-driven approach means that solutions are never generic. A young family's smart home looks and operates very differently from a luxury estate or a boutique commercial office — and it should. KOZI's portfolio spans the full spectrum: motorized shades that disappear into the ceiling at the touch of a button, outdoor entertainment systems that elevate a backyard into a destination, self-healing Wi-Fi networks that stay invisible until you need them, and home theaters that rival the cinematic experience. In commercial settings, the team delivers intelligent conference rooms, digital signage, video conferencing systems, and integrated office technologies that make businesses run sharper and communicate better.

One of KOZI's most valued capabilities is designing systems that vanish into their surroundings. Technology does not have to announce itself. Speakers can disappear into walls or ceilings. Televisions can emerge from cabinetry or disguise themselves as artwork. Control panels can be flush-mounted and minimal.

For clients who value clean lines and curated aesthetics, KOZI designs solutions that enhance a space visually while delivering extraordinary performance behind the scenes.

For clients who want technology to be part of the design statement — bold screens, sophisticated control surfaces, dramatic lighting — KOZI delivers that too. The team's flexibility is one of its greatest strengths. No two installations are identical, and no project budget defines the quality of attention a client receives. KOZI believes that every client, regardless of the scope of their project, deserves the same meticulous planning, honest guidance, and professional execution.

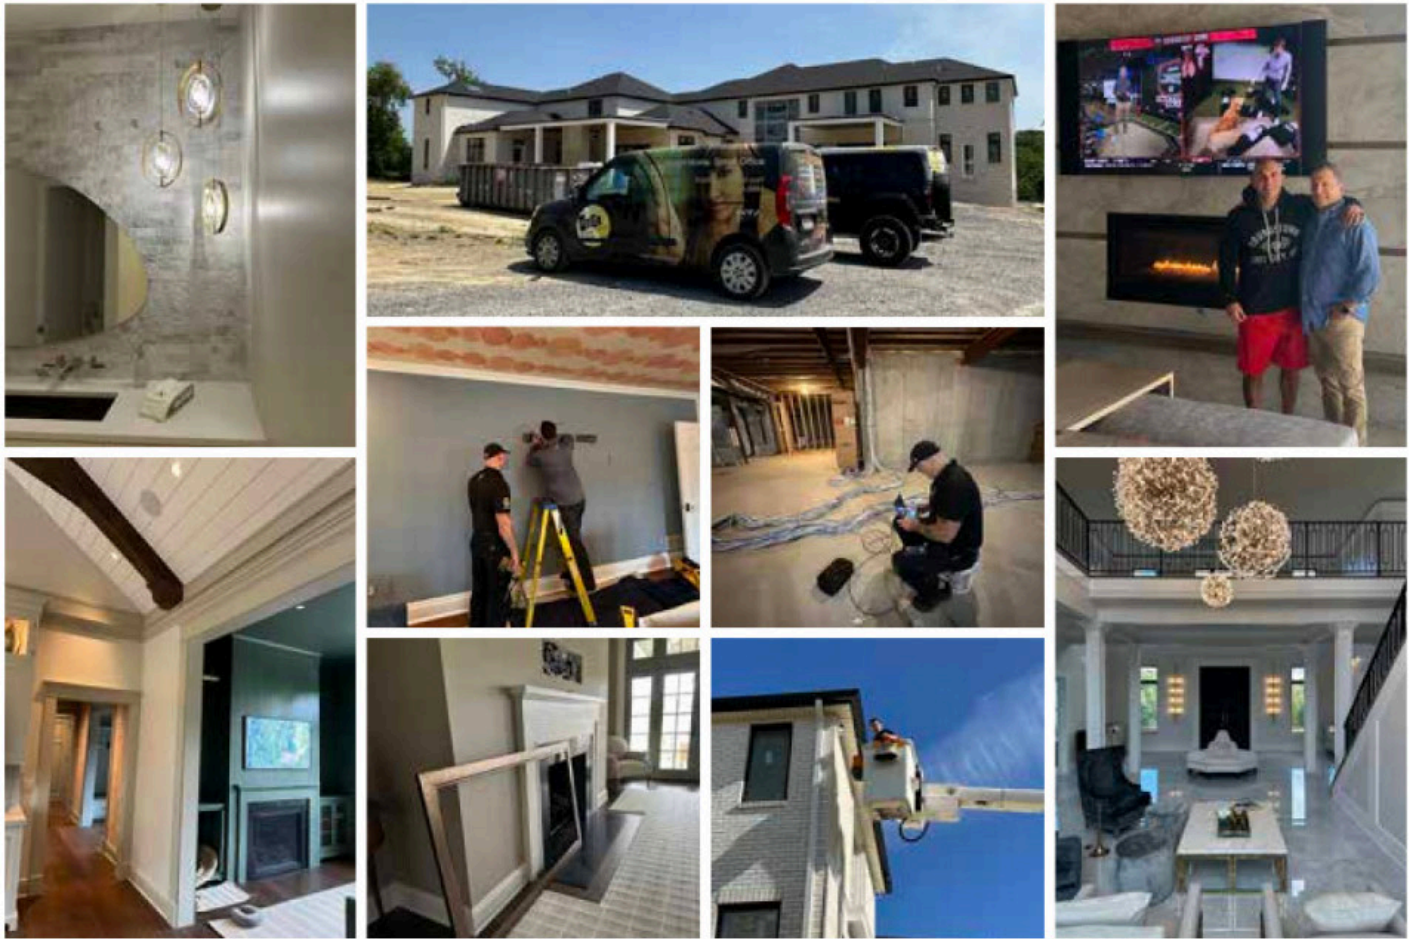

This commitment to doing things right has earned KOZI Media Design an A+ rating from the Better Business Bureau and a distinction that no other Pittsburgh integrator holds: HTA-Estate Certified and HTA Design Partner status through the Home Technology Association. This certification is awarded only to firms that meet rigorous standards for technical competence, superior service, and sustained reputation — a recognition that reflects what KOZI's clients have known for years.

Strong infrastructure is at the heart of every KOZI installation. The team understands that even the most sophisticated technology is only as good as the network it runs on. That is why every project begins with a foundation designed for long-term reliability — because a system that works flawlessly today should work flawlessly five years from now.

For Tim, Chris, and the entire KOZI team, success is measured not in equipment installed, but in clients who come home at the end of the day and feel the difference. Technology, at its best, makes life quieter, richer, more connected, and more enjoyable. KOZI Media Design exists to make that happen — one carefully crafted experience at a time.
